

Mrs. Mary Robins In Hospital From Refrigerator Gas

Lucas Avenue Resident Placed Under Oxygen Tent Early Sunday A. M. After Electric Box Releases Fumes

Alone in House

Mother-in-law of Robert C. Murray Able to Ring Scudder Door Bell

Mrs. Mary L. Robins of 81 Lucas avenue is at the Kingston Hospital recovering from the effects of gas fumes which she inhaled early Sunday morning when an electric refrigerator in the home of her son-in-law, Robert C. Murray, assistant cashier of the State of New York National Bank, sprung a leak. Her condition at the hospital where she had been kept under an oxygen tent was reported as "fairly good this morning."

Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., who resides at 79 Lucas avenue was awakened at 3:15 o'clock Sunday morning by his door bell. On investigating he found Mrs. Robins had been able to open the door and summon help although nearly overcome by the gas fumes which were escaping from the refrigerator in the Murray kitchen.

Doctor Summoned

Dr. Fred Carr was summoned and after giving her emergency treatment had her taken to the Kingston Hospital where she was placed under an oxygen tent where she remained throughout Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray were away from home on vacation at Asbury Park, N. J., at the time Mrs. Robins was at home alone. She was awakened by the noise of a car passing the house and at first believed the fumes which she smelled were from the car. Later she became alarmed as the fumes became heavier and she found it difficult to breathe. She was able to make her way to the lower floor where the fumes were still stronger. Realizing that she was fast losing consciousness, she opened her door and rang the Scudder bell of the two-family house.

Mrs. Robins was taken to the Scudder home and given treatment by Dr. Carr who later had her removed to the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray were notified and returned to their home Sunday.

Schrick to Decide

Justice Harry E. Schrick will be called upon to determine for the Albany authorities whether a recorder is to be elected this year. The matter is set down for a hearing Wednesday. The Republican party contends that the election should not be held this year and that 1939 is the year for the election of a recorder. The Democratic party contends that this year is the year. The matter is a question of law and it is contended that the statute governing the matter is not entirely clear.

Labor Delegates Arrive

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Labor leaders conferred today on convention plans for the New York State Federation of Labor, which is the vanguard of 1,400 delegates arrived. Although the three-day convention does not open until tomorrow, a parade with more than 20,000 in the line of march will take place tonight. Early arrivals indicated the convention would be marked by bitter attacks on the C. I. O. and a hot fight over the status of the American Labor Party.

Held for Espionage

Chester, England, Aug. 22 (AP)—A young man who gave his name as Archibald Norman Longworth today was remanded for eight days at Hooles police court in a charge of violating the Official Secrets (Espionage) Act in this army center. The exact nature of the charge and evidence against him was withheld at a brief court hearing, but it was indicated he was accused of approaching a young private in the Cheshire regiment in search of military information.

Arsonists Blamed

Jerusalem, Aug. 22 (AP)—Troop and police detachments sought today to keep a big fire in a Jewish-owned lumberyard from spreading to nearby Standard Oil gasoline tanks.

Five Jews were wounded when their bus was attacked south of Tel Aviv at the site of three previous attacks in the current wave of Jewish-Arab racial dispute.

Ochsner Arrested

Gus Ochsner, 50, of Bloomfield, N. J., was arrested as he drove along route 9-W Saturday by State Trooper McGrannigan. Arraigned before Justice Benjamin H. Sleight at Port Jervis, Ochsner was charged with driving while intoxicated and on being found guilty the court imposed a $25 fine which was paid.

'Protest Ignored'

Sally Saunders (above), New York actress, told a house committee in Washington investigating un-American activities that Communists in the federal theatre project in New York city urged her to go out with a negro. She said she protested to theatre supervisors, but was ignored.

Two Men Injured In Port Ewen Crash Near Gas Station

Accident at 5:30 a. m. Today Sends Saratoga and Newark Residents to Hospital; Neither Hurt Seriously

Two men were sent to the Kingston Hospital this morning following a car crash at 5:30 o'clock at the Clay gas station in Port Ewen. Matthew Breen of Saratoga Springs suffered injuries to his chest and was treated at the hospital by Dr. Jack Leiner. He remained at the hospital and his condition later in the day was reported as good.

Fred R. Goes of Newark, N. J., suffered a broken finger, an injured knee and bruises and after receiving treatment at the Kingston Hospital was discharged. Both men were brought to the hospital by Deputy Sheriff McCullough.

State Trooper McGrannigan was called to make an investigation and found that the Ford car of Breen traveling north, apparently had gone out of control and crossed the road just as the Goes car came along traveling south. The accident happened on the curve just north of the Port Ewen cemetery. Beside State Trooper McGrannigan the investigating officers included Deputy Sheriffs McCullough and Timmie. Both cars were towed to Belcher's Port Ewen garage.

New Nazi Cruiser

Latest Addition to Germany's Rebuilt Navy Launched Before Hitler and Guests

Kiel, Germany, Aug. 22 (AP)—The latest addition to Germany's rebuilt navy—the 10,000-ton cruiser Prince Eugene—was launched today at impressive ceremonies in connection with the state visit of the Hungarian Regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy.

The new cruiser glided into the water after a dedicatory speech by Arthur Seys-Inquart, governor of Austria, and christening by Mme. Horthy.

Paying tribute to Chancellor Adolf Hitler as the man who completed what Prince Eugene and other great Germans have striven for, Seys-Inquart observed with a clear bid for Hungarian friendship.

"It was well intended that the states of middle Europe which, correctly realizing how indispensable they are bound up with the German Reich, make common cause with her for their own good and for the liberation of the Danubian people."

"We all desire that the nations within this middle European space shall determine their own fate and in common endeavor be architects of their own future, at the same time respecting each other's nationalities."

To show Italy's approval, Ambassador Bernardo D. Attolico and his wife were on the platform as the only members of the diplomatic corps besides Germans and Hungarians.

Democratic Party Victim of Soviet Wiles, Is Report

Dr. J. B. Matthews Before House Un-American Probe Says Party Stepping Stone to Soviet America

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP)—Dr. J. B. Matthews, a witness before the House Un-American Activities Committee, said today Communists were trying to destroy the Democratic party as a step toward a "Soviet America."

Matthews, a writer and lecturer, described himself as a former "inside worker" for the Communists.

He told the committee that it was "the deliberate aim" of the Communists to "disintegrate the Democratic party by driving a wedge between its so-called 'liberal wing' and its so-called 'conservative wing.'"

"Before the Communist party can hope to advance far toward its revolutionary goal, it understands, and rightly, that there must be a sweeping realignment of political forces in this country," he said.

"That realignment is sought at the price of the very existence of the Democratic party. Out of the chaos of the Democratic party's destruction, it is expected that a National Farmer-Labor party would emerge."

Commanding Influence

"The effort of the Communist will be everywhere to hold a commanding influence—not necessarily a numerical majority—in the Farmer-Labor party. With a Farmer-Labor party in power, the Communist party would exert every ounce of its influence to use it as a means to the sabotage of the capitalist system of production by placing upon that system burdens of restrictive legislation and enervating taxation."

Matthews said the Communists hoped to achieve these ends "by the stages of social security and unprecedented sums for relief of every conceivable sort" until a collapse of the currency induced a major economic crisis.

"Not only upon the country's currency but upon every other front of the capitalist system, this incessant sabotage would do its work until finally the system would require a receiver," he continued.

"The Communist party would then step in as the most militant cohesive minority available to take over the functions of government. Thus would the dictatorship of the proletariat inaugurate a Soviet America."

Rep. Dies (D-Tex.) predicted today that many persons would withdraw support from organizations described as "Communist fronts" in testimony during the un-American investigation.

Dies, chairman of the house inquiry, said J. B. Matthews, a writer and lecturer, had established conclusively in his testimony that there is a "direct link between Soviet Russia and organizations in this country, such as the American League for Peace and Democracy."

Matthews said Earl Browder, Communist Party head, chose him first chairman of the league.

The committee today recalled Matthews who, after asserting that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and many other prominent persons were being exploited by "Communist front" groups, was given a plain-clothesman guard. He told the committee he had received threats of bodily harm if he continued his testimony.

Punished Enough

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Patrolman Norman Wagner declared today that two small boys had been punished enough when they were sent to the Port Ewen cemetery. He said the boys had been sent to the cemetery for stealing a 500 pound iron ball.

Came Back Home

Dallas, Aug. 22 (AP)—Two Texas gunmen who terrorized the southwest four months were held here today for action by state and federal authorities.

Coming back home brought the downfall of Floyd Hamilton, and Ted Walters, 25, who escaped from the Montague county jail at Montague, Tex., last April. Since then they had been sought in connection with numerous robberies in the southwest and the middle west.

They were arrested here yesterday, unarmed and almost penniless.

Hamilton had a buckshot wound in his left leg and was nabbed as he hobbled along a railroad right-of-way near the hideout. Walters was arrested nearby. He told officers they made their headquarters here at a negro's home.

Fritz said the pair would be brought to trial immediately for alleged participation in several small holdups here, and might be turned over to federal authorities later.

They arrived in Dallas Friday, they said, after skulking through rugged country around Dequena, Ark., for five days where they slipped through a net officers had set.

HIGHLAND MOTHER, CHILD DIE OF BURNS SUFFERED LAST NIGHT

Two Men Detained by Troopers Executives Give At Monroe for Questioning Forsyth Park Air About Attempted Abduction Of World's Fair

Two young men were held at Monroe this morning pending arrival of members of the Kingston police force and a local girl who charges that she had been molested while walking on West Pierpont street, near Wurts street, Saturday evening.

The two, Michael Dolce, 21, of Highland, and Edwin Valino, 22, of Chester, were taken in custody at the home of young Valino at Chester following a teletype message in which a license number secured by a friend of the local girl, Miss Beatrice Sweeney, was identified as that of a car owned by Valino.

A warrant for the arrest of the two was issued this morning by City Judge Matthew V. Cahill after Miss Sweeney had told the local police of her experience.

Miss Sweeney said she was walking on West Pierpont street on her way from St. Peter's Church at about 8 o'clock Saturday evening when a car drove up to the curb and one of its occupants asked her to get inside.

She continued walking on, she said, but the young man who spoke to her insisted that she get in the machine. She said she then ran to the store of William F. Walter, 87 West Pierpont street and the car drove on, but not before a woman bystander had secured the license number.

According to the local police the men had attempted to get the young woman into the car by force, but she was able to get away and then ran to the store before the car was able to molest her further.

A check on the license number which was given as 7D 27 48 was made this morning with the license bureau at Albany and Corporal Maxwell and State Trooper Dale of the Monroe outpost were notified. They went to the home of young Valino at Chester at about 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Young Dolce, who is a friend of Valino's, was there, and both were detained pending arrival of officers George Bowers and James Burns of the local police who took Miss Sweeney with them for possible identification of the young men.

Arrests Eased Off, Pompez Testifies

One-time Operator of Policy 'Bank' Says Hines 'Took Care' of All Arrests.

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Alexander Pompez, 48, once operator of an $8,000-a-day Harlem policy "bank" testified in the conspiracy trial of Tammany chief James J. Hines today that Dutch Schultz mobsters "took care" of policy arrests after organizing the racket in 1932.

Pompez, nativity dressed negro, said Dan Smith, a former New York city policeman and later a Schultz gangster, and "Big Harry" Schoenhaus, another Schultz henchman, came to his office "whenever they wanted money."

The witness, who said he once was threatened with death by Schultz, declared Smith and Schoenhaus paid him more than 100 bill-tapping visits between 1932 and 1934.

Bondsman and Dixie Davis

"Before Schultz made me join the racket, I engaged bondsman and Dixie Davis to see about arrests," Pompez said.

"But after I joined the racket, George Weinberg told me 'they' would take care of the arrests," Pompez said Weinberg, one of Schultz' chief lieutenants, told him to telephone 351 Lenox avenue, the mob's headquarters, when there were arrests.

The witness described a meeting of policy bank "controllers," called by Dutch Schultz, at which they were informed of a mob dictated "cut" from 30 to 25 per cent in their "take."

Glibly, he recited a string of colorful underworld characters, present at the meeting—Abe "The Killer" Landau, Dan Smith, (Continued on Page Two)

Kurd and Assistants Rushing Preparations for 1938 Ulster County Fair and Farmers' Field Day

Forsyth Park today was beginning to take on the appearance of a "world's fair" grounds as preparations were being made for the 1938 Ulster County Fair and Farmers' Field Day which will be held Wednesday, August 24, at the Park.

Al Kurd, manager of the Ulster County Fair Bureau, and his numerous assistants were busy as bees making final arrangements for setting the grounds ready for the exhibits. Many of the booths were being erected and by Wednesday morning everything will be in shape for the biggest fair and outing which has been held in Kingston.

75 Head of Cattle

There will be at least 75 head of cattle and the number of horses will be double that of last year. Early exhibits are also going to exceed last year's by at least 100%. As to Grand exhibits there will be 10 entries this year, one more than last year, indicating that the entire county is co-operating to make the field day the best yet.

"If today the fair and field day will be held the next day," said Al Kurd, this morning. "But everyone is looking forward to a clear day. The fair will be held Thursday only in the event it is very rainy Wednesday morning."

Cattle and horses will be displayed at the fair as they were last year but the other exhibits will be under canvas so there is no reason why a slight sprinkle early in the morning should interfere with the attendance.

The official opening hour of the fair will be 10 o'clock and there will be something doing on through the day until 6 o'clock and later.

Horse-Shoe Contest

The annual horse-shoe pitching contest to determine the county champion and who will represent the county at the State Fair will be held in the afternoon after the preliminary contests held in the morning.

One of the big features of the day with a bicycle as a prize will be the bicycle riding contest which is scheduled for 3 o'clock. This contest is for the youngsters who will be 16 years of age and there will be plenty of fun for both the contestants and the crowd.

In the commercial booth section there will be a bigger display than in former years. All of the usual exhibitors have returned this year and there are several additional entries.

With a good day the attendance should be the largest which has ever attended Ulster county's fair at Kingston. Held under the auspices of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, the fair offers many prizes and premiums.

Among the features of the fair is free admission to the grounds, demonstration judging, picnic lunch, band music. There will be baseball game, the county horse shoe pitching championship contests and various games and entertainment besides the exhibits.

Fire on Saturday Razes House-Barn Near Port Ewen

Structure Occupied by Gentler Family Burns Rapidly During Afternoon South of Village Boundaries

A fire which originated in the barn section of a structure south of Port Ewen used also as a dwelling destroyed the building Saturday afternoon.

The building, owned by John D. Schoonmaker of this city, and occupied by Frank Gentler and family, caught fire at about 3 o'clock and burned with such fury that work of the Port Ewen Fire Department was of no avail.

Firemen were further handicapped in their efforts to check the flames by lack of water facilities in the area since the structure was too far removed from the nearest hydrant on the new Port Ewen water system.

A daughter of Mr. Gentler, who was with him and the rest of the family in an apple orchard on the premises at the time, first discovered the barn ablaze.

The group made an attempt to save some of the personal effects and furniture, but the fire had gained too much headway and all was destroyed, including a car which was stored in the barn.

Origin of the fire was not determined definitely today, but it is believed that it might have started from spontaneous combustion resulting from moistened hay.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene of the fire, and traffic was directed by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Brown and Clayton Vredenburg.

Girl Traps Two

Two Former Inmates of New Jersey Reformatory Held, Part of Loot Recovered

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Police who were tipped off by a girl, held two youths, former inmates of the Rahway, N. J., State Reformatory, today for a series of 20 burglaries in New York and New Jersey cities.

After questioning the pair, William Havens, 21, of Doylestown, Pa., and James Dorsey, 20, of Weehawken, N. J., police said they had recovered part of $10,000 loot.

Dorsey, parked with a girl on the Saw Mill river parkway, near Elmford, N. Y., leaped from the car and escaped Saturday night when Westchester county parkway police approached. They fired six shots at him but missed.

His companion, who authorities said was not implicated, led them to the home of a girl friend, where they arrested Havens. Dorsey was arrested several hours later at a Manhattan hotel.

Both youths, who met while serving robbery terms in the reformatory, were charged with burglary. Havens also was charged with violating the Sullivan Act after police said they found a loaded pistol in the dashboard compartment of his car.

John Lee, Assistant District Attorney of the Bronx, said the two were driving stolen cars. He said they confessed robbing gasoline service stations, clothing shops and auto equipment stores in North Bergen, Union City and West New York, N. J., and in Westchester, Albany and the Bronx.

Authorities said the girls would be released.

Kerosene Angle

Mother Believed Using Kerosene, Is Theory—Shock Might Have Caused Deaths

Burns from exploding kerosene caused the death of a mother and daughter at Highland early last evening after the two, with the rest of the family had returned home from an afternoon fishing trip on the Hudson river.

Death, which according to Dr. Samuel Appel, medical examiner of Dutchess county, might have resulted from shock brought on by the severe, painful burns, came several hours after they were admitted to Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Special Ferry Trip

The mother, Mrs. Lillian Wolven, 40, died just before 1 o'clock this morning and her three-year-old daughter, Ella died just before midnight. The two were taken to the hospital on one of the Highland-Poughkeepsie ferries, in charge of Captain Herbert Baker, who made an emergency trip across the river.

Dr. Appel on the death certificate listed the pair as the victims of second and third degree burns. He said today he had not decided whether to hold a formal inquest and his decision would hinge upon the result of discussions with officials.

The bodies were turned over today to the Stralbridge Funeral Home, Poughkeepsie. Funeral arrangements had not been made.

From what could be learned of the accident, the two were burned as Mrs. Wolven attempted to light a fire in the kitchen stove with the aid of kerosene. Mr. Wolven had remained fishing after the others had returned home, and the other two children, it was reported, were playing outside near the house.

Lives Near Waterfront

The family resides in the lower section of Highland and the place where they had been fishing and where Mr. Wolven remained is not far from their home. The others had returned from the fishing trip at about 7 o'clock and Mrs. Wolven was starting to prepare the evening meal when the accident happened.

Patrolman Walter Clark of the Highland police, said that from what he was able to learn of the accident, the child was standing near her mother when the kerosene explosion scattered flames over their clothing.

The other children were attracted to the house by the frantic plight of their mother and younger sister, but were unable to be of any assistance. They went for their father and he rushed to the house.

Someone in a car headed towards the ferry also had notified Fred Bragg, a deputy sheriff and uniformed attendant at the ferry, and he went to the house immediately in a taxi. He assisted Mr. Wolven, who had arrived at the house by that time and Dr. Carl P. Meekins was called.

Orders Two To Hospital

The two were burned so badly, however, that Dr. Meekins was unable to be of any immediate assistance and he ordered them taken to the hospital. An ambulance had been called from Poughkeepsie, but in order to save time, those at the scene, wrapped the two in blankets and they were taken to the hospital in a truck owned by Mr. Wolven.

All clothing was burned from the bodies of both the woman and her infant daughter. The mother's body appeared to be the more severely burned, and it is believed that she first attempted to extinguish the flames which had engulfed the child's clothing and was therefore too late in her efforts to save herself or keep the flames from spreading.

An ineffectual fire had started on the walls of the kitchen, but this had not gained enough headway to be a serious danger before others arrived at the scene.

'NUMBERS' ON TRIAL: Here's How Harlem's Policy Game Operates

By The AP Feature Service

New York—While the trial of Tammany Leader James J. Hines is filled with political implications, essentially it marks the climax of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's drive to wipe out New York's numbers racket.

Dewey's efforts are being directed toward linking Hines with the late Dutch Schultz's mob which took over Harlem's myriad numbers games and organized them into one big business syndicate.

To keep the vast organization running smoothly, the syndicate hired lawyers, kept bondsmen in readiness to bail out arrested collectors and messengers of the organization and, according to Mr. Dewey, even reached into the judiciary by means of a political "fixer."

Although the total take of the racket is in the millions—some put it as high as $100,000,000, the money comes from the city's poorer classes, in pennies, dimes and occasionally dollars.

These pictures show how the numbers racket works.

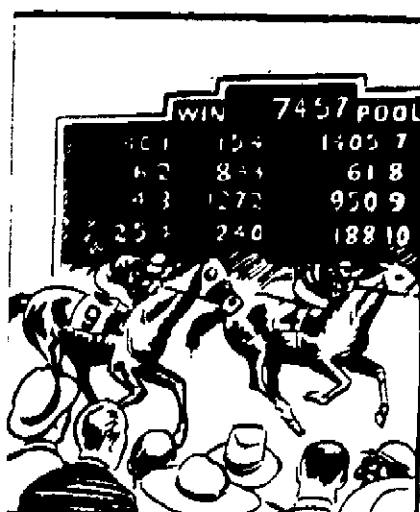

Player bets on a number . . .

Harlem is the "capital" of the numbers game. There, a player writes his number and initials on a slip of paper, gives it to a collector. There are no receipts. Thousands of players consider certain combinations of numbers lucky—they pick them from the Bible, from the day of the week, from "dream books."

"Banker" gets the money . . .

A collector sends in his slips, known as policy slips, to a "banker." At a certain hour of the day—around 2 p. m.—the "banks" are closed to further bets. Tabulators check the slips. At the end of the day, after the winning numbers are known, collectors turn in their take to the bank. The bank pays off winners.

and waits for race track pay-offs

A winning number is selected by means of the pari-mutuel pay-off at a race track. It is based on the betting returns from combinations of races. Sometimes, the syndicate learns a heavily-played number is likely to turn up, representatives at the track change the odds to bring up a different total.

. . . to determine the winner—

Although the chance of winning even from an honest numbers game is only 1,000-to-1 (because bettors use combinations of numbers from 0 to 999), news of a neighborhood winner travels quickly and makes new customers. Sometimes fake wins are staged in a neighborhood to drum up more trade for the racket.

no wonder gangsters muscled in Dutch Schultz left prohibition beer-running for the numbers game and its lucrative income. He was assisted by J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, a lawyer who turned state's evidence. Muscling in on Harlem, the Dutchman's mob soon got control of the game and made it a racket. Obstacles were persuaded—by gangland methods.

Local Death Record

Miss Ellen Wade, one of the oldest residents of the downtown section of Kingston, died at the Crispell Home for the Aged, 27 Glenview avenue, Sunday after a long illness. Surviving is one nephew, James Larkin of Bayville, L. I. Her funeral will be held from the funeral home of James M. Murphy, 176 Broadway, Wednesday at 8:45 a. m. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Blanche R. Robertson Halliday, widow of James C. Halliday, died at her residence, 262 Lucas avenue, this morning. Her funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, Wednesday at 1 p. m. Burial will be in Buxton cemetery, Bedford Hills, N. Y. Surviving are three daughters, Eleanor B. Halliday of Brooklyn, Julia, wife of Allan D. Ross of Brooklyn, and Margaret E. wife of Lester J. Koss, of Stone Ridge; also one son, James R. Halliday of Brooklyn, and four grandsons. She was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Marlborough, Aug. 22.—Cori M. Deyo, 36, of 158 Ann street, Marlborough, and daughter of the late John E. and Hattie Constant Deyo, died in her home suddenly on Friday morning. Born in Marlborough, she had lived with Mrs. Gledhill for 20 years. She was a member of the First Pentecostal Church of God. Survivors are three brothers, Arnold E. Deyo, of Fosterstown, Merrill C. Deyo, of Colorado, and Clayton Deyo, of Middlebury; three sisters, Edna May Deyo and Mrs. Elva Williams of Newburgh and Mrs. John Dunn of Cornwall. Funeral services were held today at 2 p. m. at the First Pentecostal Church and were conducted by the Rev. William Vandam, pastor. Burial took place in St. George's cemetery.

Shokan, Aug. 22.—Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Elmer, who died Thursday at the age of 80 years, were held Sunday afternoon in the Olive and Hurley Old School Baptist meeting house. Many friends and relatives of the deceased woman attended the services which were conducted by Elder Arnold E. Bellows, pastor of the church. Following a sermon based upon the last hours of Jesus and the relation of His life to spiritual joys and prospects, the elder touched upon the Christian character and works of Mrs. Elmer, who had long been a communicant of the local church, and also stressed her friendliness and neighborliness as well as her numerous virtues as a mother and grandmother. Bearers at the funeral were George Slicker, Hubert Osborn, Fred Brooks and Annas Slawson. Interment was in the Lenox cemetery.

The funeral of David H. Winter, who died Thursday morning, was held from his late residence in Bloomingburg Saturday at 9:30 o'clock and at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, at 10 o'clock, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. William J. McDonald. The Rev. Michael Fitzgerald was seated in the chancel. There were a large number of beautiful floral offerings sent to the home by his host of friends and hundreds of people called at the home to pay their respects and express their sympathy to the bereaved family. The Rev. Fathers McDonald and Fitzgerald accompanied the large funeral cortege to St. Peter's cemetery and gave the final absolution as the body was lowered to its final resting place. Colonial Chapter, No. 75, United Spanish War Veterans, conducted their ritual at the grave. The bearers were L. E. Dunn, John Finn, James Cahill, Charles Bailey, George Hartman and George Dittmar.

Two French Officials Quit As European Rift Widens

(By The Associated Press.) France faced a new internal crisis today as the rift in Europe widened over insurgent Spain's rejection of a plan for withdrawal of foreign fighters and Germany bid for sway over the Danubian basin.

Two French ministers, Ludovic Frossard, minister of public works, and Paul Ramadier, minister of labor, suddenly resigned.

No official reasons for the ministers' resignation were given but they followed Premier Edouard Daladier's announcement last night that he intended to scrap France's 40-hour week.

Financial and production difficulties were given by the Premier in a nation-wide broadcast last night as his reasons for advocating longer working hours, particularly in defense industries.

He did not name Germany, but he warned of states in central Europe who "try out their forces," for whose soldiers "there is no longer any real limit to the duration of labor."

Insurgent rejection of the British-inspired plan to rid Spain of foreign fighters threatened to lead to these results:

Frustration of nonintervention negotiators, now faced with the necessity of finding another proposal, probably necessitating long delays.

Virtual nullification of Great Britain's friendship agreement with Italy, which is to become effective only after "settlement" in Spain.

The possibility that France might open her Pyrenean frontier to arms and men for the Spanish government, which, in an earlier note, accepted the withdrawal plan.

At impressive ceremonies for the visit of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, Germany launched the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Prince Eugene, latest unit of her rebuilt navy, at Kiel.

Arthur Seys-Inquart, governor of Austria, clearly bidding for Hungarian friendship, said:

"It is well intended that the states of middle Europe which, correctly realizing how indissolubly they are bound up with the German Reich, make common cause with her for their own good and for the liberation of the Danubian people."

Fighting came ominously close to Shanghai when 1,000 Japanese soldiers and bands of Chinese guerrillas battled on the western edge of the city, in the Hungjao area where Shanghai's big air-drome is located.

In Spain, the government reported its defense lines were holding firmly in the face of fighting against an insurgent attack on the Ebro front in southern Catalonia which, it appeared, may be the beginning of an insurgent general offensive.

Costa Rica's First Flag Was of Spanish Country

The flag of Costa Rica is closely associated with the history of that nation. Costa Ricans take pride in recalling that the first flag ever flown over their lands was that of the mother country, Spain. In 1505, the city of Cartago was granted a seal on which appeared several castles and lions (the emblem of Castile) and six black eagles on a silver field. "Fide et Pace" was the motto on this seal.

When Costa Rica became independent it joined Turbide's short-lived empire and, therefore, its first flag as an independent nation was that of Mexico. However, history tells us that this flag was never raised over Costa Rican territory, says the Washington Post.

When the Central American federation was formed, Costa Rica, being one of its components, adopted its colors: Two horizontal blue stripes separated by a white stripe.

Later on, the national flag was modified in several respects and finally, when complete independence was achieved, the present flag was adopted. This flag and the national coat of arms were adopted by means of a decree dated September 28, 1848.

The national Costa Rican flag has five horizontal stripes, of which the uppermost and lowermost are blue, the next two white and the center one red and of twice the width of the others. The national coat of arms appears in the center of the white stripe.

The Costa Rican flag brings to the mind the ties that bind the sister republics of Central America, and pays homage to those who spent their lives in the service of the nation. And the rays of the rising sun symbolize the brilliant future that the people believe awaits their country.

Arrests Eased Off Pompez Testifies

J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, the "kid mouthpiece" of the Schultz gang, "Big Joe" Ison, alias "Spasm," Marshal Flores, George Weinberg, a man named "Schnapps" and Schultz himself.

"The bankers were mad about the cut and protested that the business would suffer," Pompez said.

Break Their Skulls

"But 'Bo' Weinberg told the bankers they would do as they were told or he would break their skulls open," the witness said.

"Weinberg," he added, "was very convincing."

Pompez said that after the cut went into effect, the business of his own bank dropped from $8,000 to less than $200 daily.

"What happened then?" asked Assistant District Attorney William Crimmins.

"Abe the Killer sent for me," Pompez replied. "He told me if I was banking my business outside instead of with the mob, I'd get bumped off."

Pompez said he assured Landau he was playing fair, and that after the cut was restored, business picked up.

The witness testified that two assessments totalling $10,000 were levied by Schultz for the political campaign in October, 1932, about four weeks before the municipal election.

Such "tribute," it has been brought out by previous witnesses, frequently was exacted by the ruthless "Dutchman" in order to protect the racket against police raids and court convictions.

Resumption of the trial was delayed at the start of the second week's session when a verbal clash developed over the admissibility of evidence seeking to link the name of the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin with the huge-scale gambling combine.

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, Aug. 22.—The Board of Education met Thursday evening and voted to release J. Collins Lingo from his contract to serve this coming year as supervisor of music. Mr. Lingo has been in the local schools for the past year. He is leaving here to go to Newton, Mass. Mr. Lingo leaves Marlborough on September 12. The board interviewed applicants for the job last night, but made no selection.

Mrs. John Palmer has been appointed full-time assistant in the school cafeteria, a part time worker assisted last year. Mrs. Palmer is a native of Albany, a graduate of the Albany High school, and before her marriage was bookkeeper in the National Savings Bank of Albany. She has had professional experience, and will assist the home economics teacher in the cafeteria.

The Highland News partnership between Harold Berean and DeWitt Scott, both of Marlborough, has been dissolved. Mr. Berean has bought the interest of Scott.

Raymond Linsig will begin his new work as driver Monday for the C. F. S. Milk Company of Newburgh. He will have the local route. Mr. Linsig resigned his position with the Snow Ball store Saturday.

Albert Givens, Jr., of Marlborough, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Givens, who is a victim of an obscure gland ailment, entered St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, Thursday evening, where he will be under observation and a series of tests by Dr. Crabtree.

The members of the Young People's Club of Marlborough enjoyed an excursion to New York city Sunday. The group left the Presbyterian Church grounds at 8:15 a. m., and the trip was made on a Hudson River Day Line boat.

Miss Katherine Kenyon has been hired by the Board of Education to teach home economics in the Marlborough High School next term. She will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Virginia Barkhoff, of Altamont, who will teach in the Poughkeepsie Junior High School. Miss Kenyon lives in

Woman Says Dogs Damage Property

A woman who with her husband recently purchased property in Kingston and who writes that they are trying to make it "one of the better homes in Kingston," has addressed a letter to Alderman Paul A. Zucca protesting strongly against the dog nuisance in the city.

The protest not only is against the many dogs that roam at large, but also refers to dogs that are kept on leash and which are permitted by their owners to destroy her property.

The writer claims that Kingston is "infested with dogs" and avers that they are responsible for destruction of shrubbery and grass as well as creating a condition that is "filthy and unsanitary."

Alderman Zucca was chairman of a Common Council committee that some years ago drew up a model dog ordinance which was not made into law, because, according to Zucca, so many protests were made against its adoption. He stated that he would place the letter before the Common Council and again suggest that some action be taken to mitigate the nuisance.

Can Stand on His Head, So Man 83 Is Pleased

Dale, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Eighty-three-year-old George Maurer was pleased with the world today. For the 21st time in two decades he successfully stood on his head.

Although he usually stands on his head in the spring to celebrate his birthday, Mrs. Maurer put a witty veto on the feat this year because he tried it so many times last year for photographers he "got dizzy."

However, she was finally won over and allowed him to do some head-standing yesterday at their 55th wedding anniversary.

Studer, who was a member of last year's undefeated freshman football team at Syracuse University, was named by a board of officers. He will receive the medal tomorrow from Col. Henry B. Fairbanks of New York city, chairman of the patriotic competition committee of the Military Order of Foreign Wars. Major-General John J. Byrne also is expected to attend the formal parade.

at which the award will be made. The Foreign Wars award is the first of a number of major competitions open to the 200 student soldiers in training at Fort Hancock under Colonel Miller and a staff of regular army and reserve officers.

Traders Depart
Almond, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—

With more than 2,000 trades recorded, the last of the amateur "David Harms" departed today from the World Horse Traders' Convention. Horse traders from two states tried to "hornswaggle" each other over a three day period at the conclave but with few exceptions came out even. What they made on one trade they lost on another.

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER:

"GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!"

MARSHALL WAYNE, Olympic platform diving champion, speaks decidedly for Camels. "After a strenuous competition I get a 'lift' with a Camel," he says. "And Camels sure help my digestion to hum along too."

AQUAPLANING IS FUN but it's exhausting too. That's one reason why Gloria Wheeden says: "When I feel d-r-a-g-g-y, a Camel gives my energy a swell 'lift.' And Camels are mild, delicate, yet full-flavored."

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

MRS. ETHEL ARNOLD, tennis star, comments on nerve control—"So many tennis champions prefer Camels. Camels don't upset the nerves and spoil timing. I'm convinced Camels are made from COSTLIER TOBACCOS!"

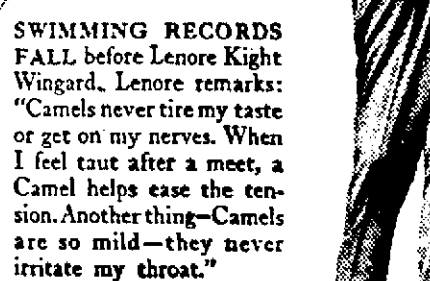

DOWN THE HUDSON—Albany to New York—in 3½ hours. Clayton Bishop, outboard motor racing star, did it. He says: "Camels never ruffle my nerves, and they give my energy a swell lift."

"IT'S CAMELS FOR ME!" declares Jane Fautz Manske, whose brilliant diving has brought her national fame. She adds: "After a diving exhibition when I feel exhausted, I welcome the 'lift' in energy I get with a Camel. Camels give me a swell sense of well-being—especially during and after meals. Camels certainly add to the joy of living. They're so mild and fine-flavored!"

SWIMMING RECORDS FALL before Lenore Knight Wingard, Lenore remarks: "Camels never tire my taste or get on my nerves. When I feel taut after a meet, a Camel helps ease the tension. Another thing—Camels are so mild—they never irritate my throat."

RALPH GULDAHL, twice winner of U. S. Open golf crown, says: "One thing about Camels is the 'lift' in energy they give. I've smoked Camels 10 years and I've never known them to jangle my nerves. I appreciate Camels."

FARMWARD

One of the most interesting facts about occupational trends today is the movement back to the farm. For half a century it has been the other way—toward the cities—growing steadily in strength until lately it began to look as if many of our farm areas would be depopulated. But the great depression, with the slow recovery and the lessons it has taught, changes people's attitude toward life and seems to be restoring the point of view of their grandparents.

A recent national poll of families on unemployment relief, who altogether number perhaps 20,000,000 individuals, and nearly all in cities, indicates that more than half of them would move to farms if they had a chance. They would be content, they say, with a house to live in and ability to meet expenses on a simple basis as they go along. These satisfactions, they feel, would more than compensate for city opportunities, hampered as those opportunities are by economic uncertainties.

It is well known, too, that in most parts of the country rural life itself has better opportunities than it used to have, better education for the children, less loneliness, more social life and cooperative effort, easier access to town, more all-around facilities for living.

DISTRIBUTING

The great achievements of the next decade, says Governor Lehman, will be in solving the problem of distribution. This is the challenge of the present, he adds, both in agriculture and in industry. "Our very success in the field of efficient production has brought us face to face with the great problem of efficient merchandizing or distribution."

It is a hard problem, complicated by the elaborate machinery and methods we have created. A good many of the present arrangements, the governor foresees, will have to be scrapped. Care must be taken, in the transition, that rights and interests created in good faith, for a system no longer adequate, will not be unduly hurt.

The change foreseen will probably take more than the decade allotted for it by the governor, but it will come. It must come, if the economic system we have known, or anything like it, is to survive. It seems absurd to think that, with our ability to produce the things needed for modern civilized life, we can't pass them around.

MORE TRAVEL

The first part of the travel season of 1938 was reported as being light. But with the first of August the tourist business has been given a new impetus. Some of the travel agencies report that the year will end as a completely satisfactory season.

Last year there was a great burst of tourist travel all over the country. Apparently people who had not been able to go anywhere for several years felt better, bought new cars and set forth to see the world. The recession gave everybody pause. People had had good vacations last year, and they weren't going to spend money on pleasure until they saw how this fall's cat was going to jump. Kitty's attitude has been reassuring, and though she, like all sensible folk, has been looking before she made her leap, she seems to be crouching ready to spring in the right direction, so off go the happy holiday-makers on their August good times.

There is a precious thought here suggested. If you haven't had a rest and a trip of some kind, take it quickly. Business bids fair to tie you down pretty steadily in the fall. You'll need all your energies. Build them up with fresh air, sunshine and some kind of change of scene while you can.

EXPORTING MAGAZINES

There is more ado in foreign countries about American magazines. The latest to protest against the growing flood of our magazine exports is Australia. Our friends "down under" like us, apparently, as much as usual, but find our recent magazine strong meat for their young people. A recent shipment of 300,000 magazines, now under a customs ban which was imposed for moral reasons, has been allowed to go on sale only because it was shipped before the ban was imposed.

Many complaints have been made to the Australian Minister of Customs regarding the quality of these literary imports. The people say the magazines are not fit for their children, but the children have been buying them. They want protection in order to preserve their own standards. To tell the truth, many Americans find some of the recent magazine crop pretty strong meat, too.

BIG BILLS

A newspaper publishes a graph of the $10,000 bills in circulation in 1936, 1937 and 1938. Last year the number sank steadily all through the year and this year it has been rising until it has now reached a higher point than any in 1936. To most Americans that comes under the head of purely academic information. No? Well, then, how are you going to spend yours?

They've dug up half a dozen "sacred bulls" worshipped in ancient Egypt. That was thousands of years ago, but modern civilization is still inclined to reverence the same old bull.

Now they have electrically heated underwear for high-fliers. Grandpa would like that for winter.

From all the fuss made about the recent primaries, you might think elections are secondary.

We Americans have ideologies, too, but we call 'em idiocies.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

SECOND GROWTH TONSILS

A patient consulted his physician about a sore throat. The physician informed him that it was his tonsils that were likely causing the symptoms. The patient smiled and stated that it was his tonsils he must have grown another pair as he had had his tonsils removed when he was ten years old.

The physician made no reply but he knew that the tonsils had not been completely removed at that age or they would not have returned. When tonsils are removed at an earlier age than six years, our throat specialists tell us that they may sometimes return.

There are many patients with arthritis who have their teeth carefully examined by X-ray and other methods who never think of their tonsils being the cause because they had their tonsils removed in childhood. They admit that they have remnants in tonsils, or tags, still present in the throat, and also that they sometimes have a sore throat but there is such a small piece or pieces of the tonsils left that they could not possibly cause the arthritis or rheumatism.

In speaking of these "secondary" tonsils or tonsil remnants, Dr. Paul H. Brouning, New York, in Medical Clinics of North America, states that they are one of the most vicious types of all infected tonsils in producing inflammation in joints and muscles at distant parts of the body. The great amount of scar tissue which results from the healing of the partly completed operation for removal, seals or covers the surface of the piece of tonsil left in, and underneath this scar there may be much infection. Because this scar or tag of tonsil is not a deep or dark red in color, as with the usual infected tonsil, it is not suspected of having this infection beneath it and so it continues to pour infection into the blood and arthritis or heart disease may follow.

The thought then in searching for the cause of arthritis is that not only the cases of inflamed tonsils with frequent sore throats should be investigated but these "second growth" tonsils and tags should be investigated also.

HEALTH BOOKLETS

Eight helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are available for readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman. They are: Eating Your Way to Health; Why Worry About Your Heart?; Neurosis; The Common Cold; Overweight and Underweight; Food Allergy; Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis); and How Is Your Blood Pressure? These booklets may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of this newspaper.

The Characters

Hugo Stern, handsome author, husband of the first Mrs. Stern.
 Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.
 (Little) Willie, a beautiful American heiress.

Yesterday, Hugo finds the name "Melanie Willis" engraved on Eve's lucky penny. She was Ottilie's sister. At the Carlton Bar I receive a mysterious note Eve wrote me the day of her death.

Chapter 13

A Bluff Called

THE little doctor had taken his leave and Hugo was alone, and as I approached he glanced up at me and whistled softly. Great Scott, man! said he. "You're green about the gills."

I hailed a waiter and ordered a double Scotch. "And what local gossip have you been listening to?" I asked, anxious only that he should go on talking and give me time to collect my thoughts.

"Ah!" said he. "Now you're asking something! I have acquired various spicy morsels which may be useful. Ricketts is a good little soul. He hastened to pass on to me all the information he thought might be of service to us."

"Well," I retorted, "so what?"

"So this," said he. "First and foremost there is a strong desire on the part of the police to side-track O'Donnell's death. The deliberate murder of an American citizen would have too many international repercussions to be pleasant—especially if they can't find the murderer. They propose, therefore, to work on the theory that poor Pat, having witnessed the murder, saw a man whom he believed to be the assassin making his escape, pursued him, and was shot down in cold blood."

"If that's the view the police take," I said, "it lets me out as the possible assassin."

"Not a bit of it," said he dryly. "You forget the different calibers of the bullets. To enlarge on their theory the man who fled happened to be standing behind you when you did the dreadful deed. He was, therefore, a crook of sorts who saw his chance to make a haul in the general confusion after the shooting. That version, you see, neatly eliminates the only two men who left the casino after the killing, and it therefore follows that the murderer remained inside. From there on, everything is beautifully simple. A girl has several wealthy admirers. A young man shoots her. The motive? Jealousy!"

"Have they tumbled to O'Donnell's real job?" I asked Hugo.

He shook his head. "Not a whisper of it, but they've checked up on his movements since he arrived in France. It seems he crossed in the American Freighter six weeks ago and, since he landed, has spent most of his time in Paris, with the exception of flying trips to Deauville and Le Touquet and his last excursion down here. He paused. "Does that say anything to you?"

I whistled softly. "It certainly does. It looks as if he'd been following the girl around. But there again, Hugo—supposing that the girl was Melanie Willis, adopted daughter of a famous banker—wouldn't it be the natural thing, if she disappeared, for her uncle to send a private detective to look for her?"

"It would, and I shouldn't wonder if we're nearer the truth than this than all the rest of our guessing. Why," he demanded, suddenly and violently, "the name of all that's holy, did that girl leave her family, come over here, take a name that wasn't her own, and associate with men like our friend the Baron?"

"If there's any answer in the world to that," I told him, "you'll find it there," and I tossed the letter into his lap.

'August 30th'

HE UNFOLDED it and read it through, his face as expressionless as a blank page. Then he looked up. "And where did you happen on this?" he demanded.

"Just now," I said, "in the hotel office."

"It's beyond me," said Hugo. "The Grand Grimoire I know of course—it's the would-be magician's text-book of black magic, but the Grimoire astrologique is a new thing. I don't know what it means. It sounds like old French. By the Chateau la Vague I presume she's referring to that respectable family hotel, but I never heard of the Caves des Muettes, and the only Club des Sans Clubs I know of is an association of the innkeepers of France."

He examined the letter again, wrinkling his brows. "August 30th is the date," he said. "That's a week from today. 'Warn him if you can.' Who the devil is he, and what are you to warn him of? Archie, my young friend, there's only one possible explanation, as I see it. The young woman was suffering from an overdose of blood—and—thunder reading, getting to his feet heavily. 'If we don't get a move on, we'll be late for dinner.'"

On our return to the chalet, a very pretty tableau met our eyes.

Metacahonts Picnic

A picnic will be held at the Metacahonts Hall on Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 31. A hot supper will be served from 5 o'clock until all are served. There will also be a fancy booth. Music will be furnished by Clayton's Military Band of Ellenville. If very stormy the affair will be held the next clear evening.

Federal funds appropriated under the Social Security Act have been used in part to employ 400 physicians on State health staffs and to pay more than 2,500 local physicians for services in clinics and conferences.

Ada was sitting on a low labourer, upright, flushed, and a trifle self-conscious, and opposite her, comfortably outstretched in Hugo's own chair, reclined a vast man in loose-hanging gray flannels.

"Why, Hugo!" his sister remarked in the tone of a little girl surprised at the jam-cupboard. "I never heard you come in! Mr. Dunning has been so instructive, all about American history."

The big man got slowly to his feet and advanced, holding out his hand. He was a huge fellow, with shoulders that wouldn't have disgraced a prize-fighter. His face, though, square, white, and heavy, was not what one associates with an ex-bruiser, for it was both shrewd and wary, and I had the impression that his pale gray eyes, almost hidden by myopic spectacles, were sizing up carefully.

"Mr. Stern," he said, "I was a friend of poor Pat O'Donnell's. His death has touched me very closely."

Hugo shook the proffered hand. "I'm glad to meet you, Mr. Dunning," he retorted a trifle dryly. "I hope my sister has been looking after you. This is, I take it, a visit of condolence?"

The big man inclined his head solemnly. "I hesitate to intrude on your grief, Mr. Stern," he said seriously, "and my own sorrow, I may say, is still fresh, for it was only this morning that I heard of the tragedy, when I arrived in Cannes on a short vacation. I feel that in view of the strangely pathetic attitude of the local police regarding the crime, it is up to poor Pat's friends, to see that justice is done."

A Good Loser

"YOUR sentiment," I do you credit," said Hugo. "But just how, may I ask, do you propose to set about achieving this desirable end?"

"That, sir, is what I would ask you, Mr. Stern, who killed Pat O'Donnell, and why?"

Hugo drew back a step, and as he did so, I noticed a certain tightening of the jaw that spoke of coming trouble. "One moment, my friend," he retorted. "Before we go any further in this interesting discussion, do you mind telling me just why you came to me in this matter? Pat O'Donnell was the merest acquaintance of mine. I met him in a hotel in New York, found him a likable fellow, and asked him to look me up if he was ever on this side. It is my lasting regret that I didn't see him before he died, but I don't think it is just possible that then I might have been of some assistance to you. As it is, I can do nothing."

The big fellow shook his head. "No, no, Mr. Stern," he said regretfully. "I know you were closer than that to Pat. He was your friend, and he confided in you quite a lot."

"Just a minute," There was a hard and menacing ring in the big man's voice. "How is it that you were not at a hotel acquaintance, that you were aware of his real job? And how is it, furthermore, that the first thing he did, upon reaching this town, is look you up and give you a rendezvous at Palm Beach last night?"

Hugo threw one swift, oblique glance at Ada. "Mr. Dunning," he said dryly, "I see that you have made good use of your time in my house; but let me tell you that the information you gathered from my sister and all you are going to get, just what you are going to get, is this affair? And the truth, if you please, if you don't want me to refer you to the police."

The American shrugged and cast a rueful glance at Ada and me. For the first time, I found myself liking the fellow. Whatever he might be, he was a good loser.

"Well, well," he said, "this is the first poker game I've lost in twenty years. You called me bluff, Mr. Stern, but I can't call yours. I'd certainly hate the police to know I'm interested in Pat's death. Well, here's the truth of it. I'm reporting for the Chicago Express."

Hugo moved to the door and held it open. "Mr. Dunning," he said, "I'm afraid we have no information that could help you. We'll have to be excused."

The big man bowed. "I accept your ruling," he said sadly. "Miss Ada, I have to thank you for a most enjoyable afternoon. Mr. Stern, I am indebted for a valuable object lesson on how to be unpleasant in the pleasantest way. Mr. Lumsden, I have a feeling there are certain interests we share in common. That last letter, for example, that Eve Monet wrote on the morning of her death, sitting outside the Bar Alcazar—if I could discover to whom she wrote it and where it is now, I believe you would be as interested as I."

I looked him full in the eye. "Mr. Dunning," I said, "when you acquire that information, I'll be glad to discuss it with you."

At a gesture from Hugo I followed our unwelcome guest through the hall and out across the courtyard. As I listened to his rattling away down the lane, I snapped the padlock with the rueful thought that I was barring an empty stable while the horse ambled happily back to Cannes.

Hint To Knitters

Does your ball of knitting yarn insist on running away? Put a ball of yarn in a small box with a tightly-fitting lid that has a small hole cut in it. Pull the end of the yarn through the hole after the cover is in place. Your yarn will pull out easily and will be clean and free of tangles.

Several thousand commercial potato growers of 15 late producing states are expected to vote in a referendum, August 19 to 24, to determine whether they favor issuance of an order which would require potato handlers to comply with a proposed marketing agreement program offered by the Department of Agriculture.

Brave Talk

WILLY NILLY now rowed just enough to keep out of the swell, though the waves were very little ones. He certainly did not want to row any further out. He was hoping the fog would lift so that they would see how near to shore they were.

And yet it seemed to grow heavier than ever. Christopher perched on Willy Nilly's shoulder and every once in a while the little man stroked the wet feathers of his dear crew. Hip was huddled at his feet, and the ducks had come over as close to the center of the boat as they could. But they all tried to get out as much water as possible though they knew it was useless.

"Talk to me," Willy Nilly said again to Christopher. "But don't say this is your fault. We didn't know there was going to be a fog. We didn't know that we wouldn't get home in time. I should have known that. I should have tested the boat—finished with all my repairs before taking it out."

"Let's not talk about any faults," barked Rip softly.

"That's right," agreed Mrs. Quacko.

"Well," cawed Christopher, "do you remember the time I tried to jump from branch to branch the way the monkeys were doing and how I fell in the snow? They had the laugh on me that time."

There was a pause. Then Christopher said: "Do you remember the time I fooled everyone for a long time with the footprints I made with the old pair of rubber boots I had? There was another pause."

"Do you remember the time I sat on the scarecrow?" Oh, it was hard to make brave talk.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—For a long time Washington has been hunting evidence of a break between President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley. What then should show up but "Genial Jim's" series of magazine articles packed full of evidence. But the trouble is it can be.

Farley in his series of articles in American Magazine concedes that he likes to pull his punches just a little bit in dealing with political foemen, as well as those opposed—politically or otherwise—to administration policies. Also, he concedes that President Roosevelt has not pulled his punches at times when it would have been smart—as Farley saw it—to have pulled them.

So there you have it. Farley is at odds with the President. But again, maybe you don't have it. Farley was at odds with the President about those tactics almost before Mr. Roosevelt had seated himself in the White House. And the instances he cites of personal differences with the President for the most part preceded the 1936 election. And in that campaign it was generally understood that Farley was adequately close to Roosevelt—adequately close, in spite of the differences.

THE other item is an instance where something that may have been a reporter's mistake turned into a political landfall. At the famous Albany meeting of Roosevelt and Al Smith in 1932 after the bitter Chicago convention, a White House reporter thought he heard Smith say: "Hello, you old potato."

It dramatized the friendliness (at that time) of the two men who had been opponents at Chicago. Farley says he was standing shoulder to shoulder to the two and didn't hear anything about an old potato, but the term took hold and made many nice headlines.

That reminds us of another story. Some 30 years ago a Spanish Moroccan band named Raisuli kidnaped an American named Perdicaris, holding him for $50,000 ransom. The U. S. put the heat on Spain, but Spain couldn't get Raisuli out of the mountains. A reporter at the State Department wheedled the Secretary of State into sending a telegram to Spain saying: "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead."

It didn't scare Raisuli but it did move Spain. Spain simply shelled out the $50,000 ransom and Perdicaris came out of captivity, complaining of Moroccan food.

years ago is reenacted. There are grass huts for the men and grass huts for the women. The native dances, the language, the customs are taught and preserved. There is a heiau (temple), and an imu (underground oven) where pigs are roasted. Guides take you from point to point, lecturing on a picturesque form of living that has practically disappeared. It is Moosman's idea to preserve this culture through education.

YOU enter the village about seven at night and the ceremonies last two or three hours. This includes the tour, the lectures, a luau (feast), music, the hula, and finally the famous fire dance in which a girl appears to be dancing in flames, to appease the anger of the goddess of the crater.

Moosman thinks New York is a good place for this village because of the vast interest shown by tourists in the Islands. Since his village opened he has had more than 6,000 students, and these students have been overwhelmingly tourist class.

One of the highlights of his visit was seeing his daughter dance in New York. She is Paulani, "most photographed girl in the Islands," and one of three Aloha maids featured by Ray Kinney at the Hawaiian Room.

Apple Sauce Help
 In making apple sauce, slice your apples, cook them in a little water until they are soft, then add the sugar. If you add the sugar at first you may need to put in more later and the apples are likely to become hard.

YOU must not let the word vilify make you think this is a PWA project. It is the idea of George P. Moosman, who founded the original village ten years ago.

HOLLYWOOD — More about

screen supervisors:

The Screen Director's Guild

"analysis"—blaming the "incept" among associate producers for much movie waste—said it one way. That was the serious, or we-mean-business way.

But the supervisor (or associate producer) has been taking it from the job since Hollywood stopped growing oranges and took up fruit of other odds.

Without the supervisor, the Hollywood jokebook would be a poor thin volume devoted to the malaprop classics of Samuel Goldwyn, Harry Cohn, Jack Warner,

"Uncle Carl" Laemmle, an occasional director or star. With the supervisor, the jokebook's encyclopedia, Wanda sample it?

The granddaddy of all movie jokes is this hoary classic, vintage

1911, when Hollywood hadn't yet annexed Los Angeles.

The director had ambitions. He was going to do a BIG outdoor epic. He was going on location. He had picked the spot.

"Just think—gorgeous trees, wonderful rocks!"

"How much?" said the producer. (The supervisor hadn't been spawmed yet but was on his way.)

The director told him. Said the producer: "A tree's a tree and a rock's a rock—shoot it in Griffith

Park!"

Oh, all right—it's the Great

Granddaddy.

MANY associate producers today, Kenneth McGowan,

Robert Lord, Henry Blanke and others the directors admire and respect for their works—are scholarly gentlemen, but here's the earliest definition of a supervisor: "A man who knows what he wants—but can't spell it."

Then there's this one: The associate producer wanted an assistant. He interviewed applicants.

"How much is 2 and 2?" he shot at the first.

"Four!" snapped the job-hunter.

"Hm—m—fast guy, huh?"

You wait outside."

To the second, the same brain test: "Two and two? Lessee—er—four..."

"Hm—m—m. I like a man who thinks things over. Wait outside."

The third didn't even gulp.

"Five," he retorted.

You're supposed to ask which got the job. The third, of course.

And why? "Oh, he was the associate producer's nephew."

AND the foreign star was having trouble with her consorts.

She couldn't say 'em. The supervisor got word, came running, his gigantic brain working.

"Trouble with consorts, huh?"

Well, we fix the script. We take out all the consorts and put in vowels! Get going!"</

Wanted to See His Baby So He Disobeyed Order

"I just wanted to see my baby" said Edward Robbins, a negro of 1018 City, when arraigned before Judge Cahill in police court today on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Robbins had appeared before the judge several other times and the last time he appeared the judge had warned him to keep away from the home of his wife and baby, as the wife had informed the judge that she wanted nothing further to do with her husband.

Robbins, however, neglected to obey the warning issued by Judge Cahill and on Sunday the police received two calls from the wife's home at 49 Meadow street, and the second call resulted in the arrest of Robbins who, it was alleged, was attempting to break in the front door.

"When can I see my baby then?" asked Robbins, "can't she bring the baby to the city hall?"

"Any man who misuses his wife and baby and uses what money he makes on the WPA for drink can not expect sympathy from me when he comes in before me and starts crying about seeing his baby," said Judge Cahill.

"But when can I see the baby?" persisted Robbins.

"That is up to your wife," replied the judge "if she wants you to see the baby she can do so, but for the next 30 days you will be confined to the county jail."

Other Cases

James Stafford of Bridgeport, Conn., was found in a backyard on central Broadway at midnight and was arrested on a vagrancy charge. He told the judge he had planned to sleep in the backyard.

"That's no place to pick out sleeping quarters," observed the judge as he imposed a fine of $5.

Michael Darcy of Scranton, Pa., was fined $3 for public intoxication.

Francis Glennon of 92 Broadway, charged with passing a red traffic light, had his hearing adjourned to later.

Kenneth Dudley of Willetts avenue, arrested this morning on

Auto Without Gears Or Clutch Is Planned

Cambridge, England, Aug. 22 (AP)—Plans for a revolutionary automobile without gears or clutch were presented today to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Professor Frederick C. Lea, formerly of Sheffield University, who presented the paper, said the new method of power transmission also could be applied to airplanes, ships and railroad trains.

It was understood an English company was being formed to promote the invention, credited by Professor Lea to Comendatore Piero Salerni, an Italian engineer living in England.

Claims for the gearless car—in which a centrifugal pump replaces the gear box and clutch—are that it would use less gasoline, increase tire mileage and quicker acceleration.

a charge of public intoxication, will be arraigned later.

Daniel Collins, of 74 North Front street, arrested on a charge of public intoxication, pleaded not guilty and the hearing was set down for Thursday, and bail fixed at $50.

Alva Eckert of St. Remy was fined $2.50 for public intoxication. That was all the money he had with him.

Charles Fitzgerald of 47 Van Buren street, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, had his hearing set down for later.

George Bailey of this city, charged with public intoxication, had a job waiting him and he was given a chance to return to work.

PREVIEWED

Today

Kingston: "The Texans," a story of a people who fought and won in the days of the pioneers who built this country, risked their lives for love and glory.

Scenes of battles with savage Indians and the hardships of the country's founders stand out in this picture. The love interest is furnished by Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott. Preview.

Broadway: "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" featuring Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor and Humphrey Bogart in what is claimed to be one of Robinson's best pictures.

Orpheum: That sterling comedy team of Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane are co-stars in "Blondes at Work." Glenda once more plays that flippant but winsome girl reporter named "Tootsie."

Blond and the husky Barton steps again into the role of Police Lieutenant Steve McBride, her boy friend. Once again the shrewd journalist outwits the slightly dumb copper and solves a puzzling murder mystery, at the same time scoring sensational scoops over the male reporters at city hall. In the capable cast are such familiar players as Tom Kennedy, Rosella Towne, Thomas E. Jackson, Kenneth Harlan, Jean Benedict and the one-time idol of the silent films, Betty Compson.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Young Fugitives," starring Robert Wilcox and Dorothy Kent, also "Border G Man" with George O'Brien, Laraine Johnson and Ray White.

Broadway: Same. Also preview of "Port of 7 Seas," Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan and Maureen O'Sullivan are the stars.

Orpheum: Same.

Buck Deer Hits Side Of Car and Is Killed

A large buck deer ran into the side of the car of Arthur Coy of Modena as he drove along the Itasca-New Paltz road near the Brown gas station at Tillson Sunday evening about 8:45 o'clock. The deer's neck was broken by the impact and the door of the car was dented. Deputy Sheriffs McCullough and Rogers were notified and took charge of the carcass until Bert Castle of the Conservation Department took charge. The carcass was taken to the Forest Packing Company plant and later turned over to the conservation department for distribution to public institutions.

Ada's Beauty Shoppe

Ada's Beauty Shoppe of 70 Main street has filed a certificate under the assumed business name law. The operators of the shop are Ada Stauble of Hurley and Lillian Meyers of 70 Main street, Kingston.

Colonial Rebekah Picnic

A basket picnic will be held by members of Colonial Rebekah Lodge at Forsyth Park Tuesday, August 23. Supper will be at 6 o'clock.

Early day baseball umpires were not league officials. The managers met before each game and agreed upon "a gentleman of high repute in the community" to act.

Local Residents to See Blimp

Local residents have read a lot about lighter-than-air ships in recent months, and on September 1 will be given an opportunity to inspect one at close range, when the Puritan, one of Goodyear's fleet of non-rigids, visits this city in connection with the highway demonstration show being staged on invitation of Bert Wilde of Bert Wilde, Inc.

The Puritan, which has become a familiar sight in recent years to winter visitors to Miami, has carried thousands of passengers in the eastern section of the United States, and has covered hundreds of thousands of miles.

Filled with 112,000 cubic feet of helium, the non-explosive, non-inflammable lifting gas, the Puritan is 150 feet long, 54 feet in overall height, and has accommodations for six passengers in addition to the pilot. The passenger cabin is enclosed. Power is provided by two radial air-cooled engines, one on each side of the cabin.

In charge of the Puritan will be Jack Boettner, veteran manager of Goodyear's airship operations department. Boettner, who is a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve, is a qualified rigid airship pilot, having trained at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station, and has spent thousands of hours in the air in all sections of the country. While in Kingston the Puritan will be based at the 158th Field Artillery Armory.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Aug. 22—Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Taylor and daughter Marie, and Miss Doris Wilson, of Paris, Ont., were guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Fuller of Mountain Laurel Lodge.

Mrs. Herbert Conman and brother, Eugene Sentimilsky, returned to New York Sunday after a brief visit to the Sentimilsky home-tend along the East Butternutkill.

Will Doyle and Erwin Armholm of Brooklyn are visiting at the Kenneth Olson camp along the Ridge road.

Mrs. John Arnold of Schenectady and daughter, Mrs. James Sheldrake, of Albany, are remaining at the Elmendorf home on the corner for another week.

Mrs. Charles Taylor of the north reservoir boulevard is at a Kingston hospital where she underwent a major operation last week.

Mrs. Julia Hogan is again at her residence in the village center following a visit with her daughter, Mrs. John Hamilton, in Kingston.

The death of Mrs. Henry M. Crispell, well-known resident of the west side of the Esopus creek, took place August 22, 1938. Funeral services for Mrs. Crispell were held Monday, August 24, in the Shokan Dutch Church.

Recent guests at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Heardon of Brooklyn included the following New York residents: Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kelly, Mrs. Grau and son, Jav., Miss Josephine Reardon, John Parley, Mr. and Mrs. Janet and son, Roy, and Mrs. Orsini and daughter, Patricia.

Roy Jarot will spend another week at the Heardon cottage.

Mrs. Jane Stubble has returned to her Shokan place, "The Cairngorm," from Scotland where she spent several weeks with relatives.

Willis Everett and grandson, Clyde Everett, of Lake Katrine, attended the funeral of Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf Sunday afternoon.

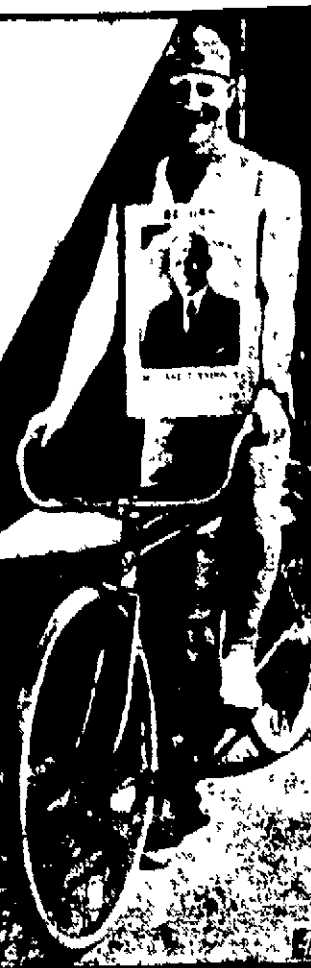

Brooklyn Woman Injured Sunday

Adaline S. Griffith of Brooklyn, an elderly woman, was injured Sunday morning in an automobile accident at West Shokan when a car operated by her daughter, Louise Kelley Griffith, left the road and went into the ditch. The accident was caused when the Griffith machine and car operated by Chester Harriman of Plainfield, N. J., grazed as they were passing at the Bow and Arrow Gift Shop.

Mrs. Griffith was brought to the Kingston Hospital suffering from a broken collar bone and a broken jaw. Her condition was reported as fair at the hospital today.

The accident was investigated by State Troopers Kelly and Siskles. Mrs. Griffith was brought to the hospital by Mr. Harriman.

ROOSEVELT SLAP

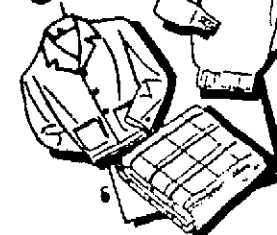

Capt. R. C. O'Connell keeps cool and makes it plain he favors re-nomination of Senator Millard E. Tydings at Baltimore convention of Maryland-American Legion which adopted—without dissenting vote—a report criticizing President Roosevelt for his attempted purge of Senator Tydings.

Strike at Officials.

Orangeburg, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Dog track operators moved in court yesterday to restrain Rockland county officials and state police from interfering with operation of the re-conditioned Orangeburg track. Joseph Meyers of Clifton, N. J., head of the Breeders and Racing Association here, caused service of a summons and complaint on District Attorney George V. Dorsey and Sheriff Edward C. Dorman of Rockland county and Maj. John A. Warner of state police. The officials must show cause next Thursday before Supreme Court Justice Gerald Nolan why they should not be restrained from interfering.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tartar and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic Put plate or bridge in 1/2 glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—then—rinse with water and you're done!

Prevents "Denture Breath"

Fatta-Mirable Here Friday; Riggs Loses Woodstock Net Match

Two Conquerors Of Mario Severino In Feature Bout In Feature Bout

Two Features

Raigins-Forez in Other Match of Double Feature on Friday's Boxing Card at Municipal Auditorium

It'll be Carmine Fatta, the Newburgh Golden Glove who triumphed over Mario Severino last week, and Frankie Mirabile, Albany sensation, in the feature boxing attraction at the municipal auditorium Friday night.

And, as the accompanying feature, Charley "Honeyboy" Raigins, the Saugerties Bomber, will step right out into the higher class again, meeting Charley Forez, the Albany Buzzsaw.

In his decision, Severino, Fatta made a decided hit with Kingston fans, and those of this vicinity, who crowded the auditorium to see the scrap, and his match with Mirabile is expected to pack the place again this week.

Fatta, a two-fisted scrapper, with an iron chin, off which Severino bounced his best punches, is expected to put up another sensational fight with Mirabile, the only other pugilist in the upper part of New York state to hold a win over Mario who soon will be fighting in the Lou Ambers stable as a professional.

Mirabile beat Severino in the Diamond Belt Tournament at Albany last winter, entering the featherweight class as a surprise to the Schenectady sensation. Severino never would consent to box Mirabile previous to the tourney, and avoided him after it, despite Frankie's promise to pare himself down from the lightweight to the feather limit just as he did for the tourney.

Fatta has met the best of them and is not afraid of Mirabile, the boy who boxed all over the world, in all the principal cities of the United States and Europe. He is in the pink of condition as he proved in his match with Severino, and Kingston fight patrons can look for another sensational clash as far as Carmine is concerned, says Walt Ligon, his handler.

That Honeyboy Raigins vs. Charley Forez match is expected to be another eventful ring war, with the little Saugerties Bomber trying to finish up Forez just as he did Cliff Leger several weeks ago. Raigins stormed the Mohawk Indian with so many punches that he completely upset all pre-fight dope by stopping him.

Other bouts will be: Carl Fiore, Tommy Zano's sparring partner, vs. Buddy Benoit, Ballston Spa, the boy who fought a sensational fight with Buddy Emerson.

Leo Sarinelli, Albany bantamweight champion of the Adirondack A. A. U., vs. Sammy Trovatiello, of Poughkeepsie.

Eddie Ackery, who boxed Frankie Thompson in a torrid five rounder on the only outdoor show this summer, vs. Sherry Smith, Newburgh slugger.

Dutch Williams, Newburgh, vs. Marty Syzydek, Polish Pounder from Amsterdam.

Hank Bunce, Kingston lightweight, vs. Carlo Litz, Albany.

Rutherford Victor Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 22 (AP)—Juno, driven by Jack Rutherford, Port Washington, N. Y., won the national sweepstakes motorboat race yesterday in three straight heats. Clinton Ferguson drove his Class X outboard racer to record of 61.293 miles per hour, first time mile a minute ever exceeded by outboard.

There's a fellow by the name of Charley Weise who'd make a good match for Melio Bettina, says Lew Meyers, New York fight manager. . . In fact, according to Lew, Charley might take Bettina over. . . You'll hear more about this match. . . Whether it will go through remains to be seen. . . That Carl Fiore, who trains with Tommy Zano, is the Bronx county welter champ. . . Last Friday he trimmed Joe Triola. . . Joe is the first southpaw Carl ever fought. . . He's bound for popularity around these parts. . . Sergeant Perry intends to come to Kingston to live. . . He was discharged from the U. S. Cavalry at West Point last week. . . Bobby Riggs, ranking tennis player, made a hit at Woodstock Sunday despite his loss to Gardner Mulloy. . . The quarter finals in the Ulster Tennis Tournament were slated today, depending on the conditions of the courts. . . Tonight it's the Kyanize and Closi in the City League.

Colonials Take Over Saugerties By Score of 11-5

The Colonials scored another win over Saugerties, Sunday, 11-5, at Cantine Field, behind the pitching of Joe Brown, who struck out 12 batters. Charley Buylkus fanned eight of the Colonials.

Sixteen hits were gleamed by the Colonials, one of the blows being a homer by Tommy Maines in the seventh. Joyce was on base when Tommy clouted for the circuit.

Germen Netmen Await Permission

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22 (AP)—German participation in the national doubles tennis tournament depended today upon receipt of an affirmative cablegram from Germany.

The German team was ordered home on Saturday after elimination by Australia in the inter-zone Davis Cup final, but U. S. Lawn Tennis Association officials cabled an appeal for them to remain.

Don Budge and Gene Mako are top-seeded for the event this year, in which all of America's players first time are entered, along with other players from France, England, Japan and Australia.

Budge and Mako will start their title drive by meeting Marvin Wachman of Milwaukee and Norbert Burgess of Chicago, in a first round tilt.

Bill Newkirk advanced to the quarter finals in the men's division of the Ulster County Tennis Tournament Saturday, defeating Knute Beichert by the score of 6-3, 6-4.

The quarter finals are scheduled for today, provided the courts at Forsyth Park are in condition. They will bring together Oliver Hawkins and Chet Fox and Bob Herzog and Bill Newkirk.

Police Baseball Game in Newburgh This Afternoon

Some 5,000 baseball fans were expected to attend the baseball game this afternoon in Newburgh between the police team there and Kingston. Last Thursday, the game was rained out, giving the clubs a little more time for work-outs. Freddie Stout will pitch for Kingston, and Sammy Foster likely will start for the Newburghers.

STILL TOPS AT TENNIS

Kyanize opposes Gus Steigerwald's Closi A. C. in its second half debut tonight at the Athletic Field beginning 8 o'clock. The Painters, first half title holders, will bunk up against the Grocers in the first match of a three game weekly schedule. Replay of a postponed clash with Closi's on August 9 takes another fricas on the original twin-bill listed for the Dawkinsmen this week. The first half champs collide with Hedricks on Wednesday and round out the week against Jones Dairy on Thursday.

Commencing tonight, the twilight tilts will be staged Monday through Friday during the last round. Besides tonight's clash, two other replayed contests loom on the second half sked. Listed for Monday dates also to speed up completion of the card of games. Jones will clash with the Knights on Monday, August 29, and clash with the Hedricks on Monday, September 5.

Knight to Pitch

Kyanize will send Pres Knight in from center for mound duty as the probable pitching selection. Van Elten, Bock, Sickler and Stumpf will line up along the infield for the champions. As a shortstop, has been troubled with a smashed finger, but may be ready for action tonight. Charley Lay will patrol in the outfield. Dawkins picked up Lay from the Knights for the last round. Lay's addition gives the Grocers more power in the hit columns. Orville Sweet, Saugerties flipper, will see action during the last half hurling duels. Bush, Thomas and Sweet comprise a neat mound trio.

Closi's will send Earl Sleight on Leo Komosa out there on the hill with Vince Stoll behind the triangle. The Grocers dropped their first start 9-6 in a wild slugger bee with Grunewalds and should prove troublesome to the first half champs.

Second Half Standings

Market Indicates
Industrial Gain

There were a number of small but fairly impressive signs of a resumption of industrial recovery last week. Activities abroad were the cause of an upturn in the stock market. German army maneuvers on a large scale caused an acute alarm during the first of the week and there was a violent decline in security prices on the Berlin bourse. Later events supported the inference that the Berlin market panic was due less to the war scare itself than to conditions internal to Germany. There was a partial recovery of the Berlin market late in the week following an official denial that the government contemplated a capital levy. This act was reflected in conditions here.

Weekly carloadings report was again mildly favorable and the motor car production made a preliminary upturn, not necessarily to be repeated this week, but almost certain to be resumed thereafter as all important producers complete their shifts to the new models. Steel mill output was slightly ahead with consumers ordering only for immediate consumption. Distrust of the price structure still prevails in contrast with the generally hardening tendency in other building materials. Private building moved upward slowly and incrementally. Feverish efforts to speed up public works programs "must" be expected to reach the stage of practical results in another month or two, one authority quotes.

Three weeks of rapid decline in grain and cotton prices was halted last week and a slight recovery in major farm products followed.

For the second week in succession commercial loans of banks in the New York federal reserve district increased in moderate amount. These loan figures from the present time on will act as a good indication of the fall merchandising movement.

Industrial stocks gained more than half their net losses of the previous week and rails and utilities gained less than half the previous week's net losses. Corporation bond market was soft. Cotton closed less than a dollar a bale above the previous week's closing mark and except for the week-end, at the lowest level price since early June. Grains made slight gains but remained near the season's low points.

The tire industry hopes for a market improvement in second half profits as a result of good replacement tire sales this summer and improved outlook for fall automobile production. A decline of 15 per cent in second half shipments from like 1937 period against a drop of 41 per cent in the first six months is indicated.

Companies reporting net income for six months to June 30 include:
American Smelting and Refining $1.53 against $3.33 for 1937 period. Atlantic Refining 26c against $1.18 for like period last year. Standard Oil of Kansas $3.17 on outstanding shares against $3.54 for like period in 1937.
L. S. Starrett reports net income of $465,283, or $3.05 a common share in year ending June 30 vs. net of $771,091 or $5.10 a share in preceding year. Chicago Pneumatic Tool's net of 61c on second preferred in quarter ending June 30, vs. 78c on common in like 1937 period. Jewel Tea had net of $693,522, or $2.48 on common for 23 weeks ending July 16 vs. net of $767,074, or $2.74 in corresponding 1937 weeks. First National Stores report net of 79c on common vs. 93c for quarter ending June 2.

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Stock market leaders backed down today in one of the slowest sessions for more than two months. Losses ran to a point or so during the forenoon, with the ticker barely moving. Faint support appeared later and extreme set-backs were reduced near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of about 400,000 shares.

Motors, last week's star recovery performers, were among the first to give ground. They improved eventually.

Steels shaded declines when the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated this week's mill operations at 42.8 per cent of capacity, up 2.4 points, the best mark since last November.

Bonds were mixed and major commodities lower. Foreign securities markets displayed irregular trends.

Prominent stocks on the retreat included U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Goodyear, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Deere, Boeing, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Anaconda, American Smelting, Homestake Mining, Dome, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Philip Morris, Owens-Illinois and Texas Corp.

Resistant were Bethlehem Steel, Air Reduction, American Telephone, American Can, Crane Co., U. S. Gypsum and Standard Oil of N. J.

Two Killed, More Than 40 Hurt
As Two Subway Trains Collide

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—At least two persons were reported killed and more than two score others were injured in a rear end collision between two Lexington avenue subway trains today.

The crews of a dozen ambulances sent to the scene gave first aid treatment to injured passengers on the station platform, at Lexington avenue and 116th street, and then took them to nearby hospitals.

An explosion which followed the crash sent great clouds of black smoke billowing up through sidewalk air vents.

The motorman of a southbound train, Salvatore Cota, and an unidentified negro passenger were trapped when the first car telescoped the rear of another southbound train standing at the platform.

An ambulance surgeon finally succeeded in freeing the trapped motorman but only after he had amputated his leg, working by the light of acetylene torches and with the aid of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia who arrived shortly after the crash.

Twelve of the injured, including six women and a child were taken to Harlem Hospital. One of them was reported in serious condition.

Most of the seriously injured victims were passengers in the moving train, although a number on the first train were hurt during the confusion which followed when the lights went out after the explosion.

Police reported the crash was caused when William Curley, motorman of the telescoped train, jammed on his brakes after a passenger got caught in one of the doors just as the train started to pull out of the station.

Cota was unable to stop his train in time to prevent the crash. Frightened passengers were helped from the subway by police. Firemen fought two fires which started after the collision. Smoke rolled through the subway as far south as 110th street and north almost to 125th street.

Police reported the quick thinking of Morris Schneider, a liquor salesman, probably saved many persons from injury. He pulled the emergency door lever immediately after the accident preventing greater panic and enabling many passengers to leave the train and reach the street.

Dennis McKenna, 30, conductor on the second train, was thrown to the floor and trampled by frenzied passengers in their efforts to escape the smoke-filled train.

Tennis Star Missing
Millburn, N. J., Aug. 22 (AP)—Police broadcast an eight-state alarm today for William F. Umstaedter, 17-year-old star, described as missing by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Umstaedter. The parents reported to police that young Umstaedter, national boy indoor and outdoor tennis champion in 1936, was due home yesterday from Stamford, Conn., invitation tournament.

Also, he designed sets for the National Music League Opera Co., and worked as a designer under the prominent New York designer and producer, Norman Bel Geddes. This is his second season as set designer for Robert Elwyn.

Milliken's play was suggested by the ever intriguing mystery of the first American civilizations, and the interest which follows archaeological explorers, and the possibility of a striking set design inherent in the ancient buildings which the Incas constructed of unbelievably immense stones. The author also drew upon a heritage in the fact that his father and grandfather both were mining engineers and promoters in Mexico for the greater part of their lives, and left a fund of adventure stories in a country not far removed from the Andes of South America.

Plays Possum
Sydney, N.S.W. (AP)—Perhaps it was tired, or just lazy, but a sheep on a ranch near here lay so long on its back on a feeding trough, everyone thought it was dead. When a farmer grabbed its stiffly upturned legs and swung it to the ground after several hours, the sheep bleated loudly and began feeding at the trough.
